Parties With Themes

Parties with costumes are so entertaining. These parties can be held for company gatherings, family parties, block parties, and even holiday parties. Costume parties can be held with so many different fun and unique themes in mind. Each year our block parties are held with a new theme to base our costumes off of. Theme based costume parties are much better than general costume parties and require much less thought when it comes to choosing a costume.

Our medieval warrior theme party was a great success last year. Guests got to wear neat looking armors, shields, swords, axes, and knives. This party was so much fun to attend. I dressed up in a Roman armor costume and carried a shield and javelin with me. The costume was topped off with a nice Roman helmet that I bought through an Internet retailer.

There were Vikings, Spartans, Trojans, and even English noblemen and women attending the party with me. My friend Bill dressed up like one of the legendary immortals. It was a full ten minutes before I was able to figure out just who he was. His wife Stacy decided to dress up as a gladiator. Her spiked helmet and curved sword made her look like a viscous warrior rather than an elementary school English teacher, and mother of two, which she really is.

The costumes really make going to a large party easier because it gives everybody something to talk about. When people attend large parties with people they dont know they dont always know what to talk about, but theme parties fix this problem with ease.

Theme parties are so great that everybody should go ahead and have one this year. You can buy them at local stores, second hand stores, and even through Internet retailers.
